BACKGROUND

Workshop to Finalize Training Modules on Gender

The March Workshop was organized with an aim to finalize the training modules on gender for the different courses /programmes run by the Lal Bahadur Shastri Academy for Administration (LBSNAA) for civil servants and to consider the most appropriate nature of training inputs for the various courses. The Workshop was a follow-up to the National Consultation Workshop on Gender held in December 2011 which evaluated the existing training structure and inputs on Gender in the various training modules and which developed, thematic inputs, number and duration of inputs at the different stages of the courses and contents in the programmes, along with a list of resource material like reading material, audio-visual and case studies.

Specific Objectives of the Workshop

1. To finalize the training modules on Gender issues for the various programmes conducted in the Academy;
2. To finalize the contents, topics for each session, its methodology and contents of training modules for different levels;
3. To finalize the experts/resource persons, resource material and deliver the proposed training at all levels.

Lal Bahadur Shastri National Academy of Administration

The Lal Bahadur Shastri National Academy of Administration (LBSNAA) is a premier Institute of the country, which is entrusted, with the task of training senior members of the Civil Services in India. The Academy imparts training to the All India Services and the Central Services Group-A officers, in a common Foundational Course, along with training of recruits to the Indian Administrative Services. In-service training courses are also conducted for middle and senior level IAS officers, as well as for officers promoted to the IAS, from the State Civil Services.

The National Gender Centre, situated in the Academy, aims to mainstream gender in policy, programme formulation and implementation in Government, so as to establish gender as a priority concern in government and to ensure the equitable development of men and women. The Centre is committed to the programmes on gender sensitization. NGC's approach to gender equality has been to ensure that all aspects of its training programme mainstream gender equality issues in design and implementation and monitoring.

The Centre has been delivering gender training through courses and sensitization inputs to understand the conceptual and analytical gender relations framework to the regular courses run by the Academy, in the form of “stand-alone modules.”

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Workshop to Finalize the Training Modules on Gender was held on 5th and 6th March 2012 at the Lal Bahadur Shastri National Academy of Administration (LBSNAA), Mussoorie. The workshop was organized by the National Gender Centre of the LBSNAA with support from UN Women (refer to Annex A for full workshop agenda). The Workshop participants comprised a total of 35 gender experts from various parts of India along with officials from the LBSNAA and specialists from UN Women (refer to Annex B for participant list).

The aim of the workshop was to finalize the course content of the training modules for different levels of the various programmes conducted by the Academy. The Workshop brought together experts from various fields related to gender issues and evaluated the modular structure prepared in the National Consultation Workshop on Gender, held in December 2011 and further detailed the sessions, methodology and resource persons and materials list.

The current workshop was a follow-up of the December 2011 Workshop which was held to develop the themes and sessions at various stages of the different programmes at the Academy.

At the end of the current workshop the group proposed the methodology to be adopted for delivering each session, it also prepared a list of resource persons and resource material including audio-visual material and case studies.

1. Introduction

A Workshop to finalize the training modules on Gender was undertaken on 5th and 6th March 2012 at the LBSNAA, Mussoorie. The Workshop brought together experts from various fields related to gender issues and finalized the sessions and methodology for the various themes of courses taught at LBSNAA at different levels.

The Workshop aimed at finalizing the gender training modules for the different courses/programmes run by the Academy for civil servants and trainees of other services that visit the Academy.

2. Inaugural Session

The first session started with a welcome address by Mrs. Roli Singh, Deputy Director, National Gender Centre. Mrs. Singh provided the background information about LBSNAA and the National Gender Centre, further elaborating the work that had already been undertaken by the NGC to develop thematic modules on gender while recapping the National Consultation Workshop held in December 2011. She emphasized on the need to finalize the training modules and prepare the resource materials which can be used for the courses based on the work developed during the last workshop. She elaborated the agenda for the current workshop stressing that during the current two-day workshop the groups need to detail each session and prepare a module for each session with a 10-12 slide PowerPoint presentation. The group was requested to detail out the sessions for Phase II and Phase III courses as they would commence soon, this would help the NGC to implement the newly developed curricula in the current year itself. This was followed by a round of introduction of the participants.

Discussion regarding the courses at the Academy followed in which the faculty informed the group about the various Phases, specifying that in Phase I the first module is district and land management, a week-long module and the Academy takes a session on succession law, women farmers and land law with Gorakhpur as an example. The second week in Phase I is rural development which also entwines well with gender issues and the Academy intends to hold a session on weaker section and on health. For the session on weaker sections and minorities, the Academy intends to use the exercises that the NGO, Jagorie had developed and explain the term 'minorities' using these games.

Ms. Abha Baiya commented that each session should have an extensive suggested list of reading material. Mr. Narayan commented that the group needs to be very careful while suggesting inputs on gender into courses and not be too ambitious of including gender in every module. As an example he mentioned urban management and how much of a gender perspective could be included in the module. To this Ms. Singh added that the Academy was at an inception stage in the urban issue, and that they were dealing with very basic issues in the urban subject. To this Ms. Govind Kelkar mentioned that 47% of the Indian population lives in the urban areas and there are issues like migration, slums, housing, violence which affect urban or infrastructure issues. Ms. Singh elaborated that in the urban issue currently the topics of water, health and sanitation are discussed and gender issues are highlighted. Ms. Nandita Shah suggested the use of case studies in these sessions as they sometimes prove more useful.

It was emphasized that the trainers conducting these courses need to be made aware through train the trainer workshops or otherwise, so that the content and the trainer weaves the gender issue in, well.

Ms. Singh mentioned that the Academy requires the material for the Training of Trainers so that the trainers are clear about it. She further elaborated that during winter the Academy undertakes a number of trainings for their own faculty including activities and case studies which are read in the evening and discussed the next morning.

Ms. Singh further elaborated the objectives of the various courses; she mentioned that the objective of the FC is sensitization, all other inputs are generic and have to give a perspective, like the place of India in the world, evolution of our quality, etc. Phase I she mentioned is the professional course and only IAS (administrative) people come back for it after a 'Bharat Darshan', in which the Academy builds in gender issues. She mentioned that instead of doing one long standalone course on Gender, the Academy refers to Gender through the length of all courses for example law runs through the course on dowry etc. then there are other modules like public administration, ICT, etc. which also run through the length of courses. In the field study as well, gender issues are looked at in detail in the district training. The faculty however highlighted that the district training manual is basically land based manual, so it is difficult to include different issues. Ms. Singh informed that currently during the field study most students opt for topics of elections and MNREGA and it is difficult to persuade them to undertake gender specific study. Instead the Academy therefore gives them pointers to look at gender issues like empowerment, etc. in BDO. Ms. Singh emphasized that the role of the Academy is to provide the probationers with skills that would be important for them when they take charge of work. She explained that this is the last interface with the probationary officers and then they only come back to the Academy only after 7 years, hence it is the duty of the Academy to provide them with an overall picture.

The group then re-looked at the suggestions of the last workshop and went through the slides and provided valuable comments and suggestions. The same were incorporated as part of the discussions.

While going through the slide on FC – general concepts, it was informed that the comments of UN Women had been included. It was suggested that the probationers should also be informed about the national goals in addition to the MDGs. Nishi, faculty from TISS suggested investing one week looking at self, i.e. self-reflection and attitudinal change, spread over 5 days. This suggestion was appreciated by Ms. Singh and she requested TISS to share their session and also invited them to conduct a TOT for 3 to 5 days with the NGC faculty. However it was highlighted by TISS that it takes time for trainers to be trained. Ms. Abha Bhaiyya seconded the material and mentioned that if the self could be addressed then the rest can be done pretty easily and that FC was perhaps a better level to introduce it at, since IPS and IFS are also trained together.

Certain changes were suggested to FC, point on multiple identities was added, gender responsiveness was suggested to be taken to Phase I, point of ‘link gender to development’ was moved to Public administration.

Mr. Hassan, Director SIRD, Mysore offered to share 11 films on law and an e-learning module on the DV (domestic violence) Act.

The group further suggested the following changes to the existing slide presentation (refer to Annex D for the complete presentation),
